A BOMB IN THE CAMP.

Democrats for their undivided sup- crat had opposed his measure. Ev this section. At first it was felt that a mistake had been made by the President and naturally, for in this section at least, there has been no intimation or insinuation or hint of politics in any of our war activities, at any time since the war began, or certainly not since the Democrats decided not to oppose Mr. Slemp's received not composes. Democrats and Republicans have worked in harmony and effectively in this section, putting aside all personal differences, political, social and religious, bending all their energies—time, money and brains, to the winning of the war, and as said, Mr. Wilson's "appeal" for party support, came as an unpleasant surprise to many of the project of this section.

Washington to justify an opinion as against Mr. Wilson's course. He knows, as few men can know, how matters stand and have stood during the past strentom year and a half. He knows who has fought with him and against him—hindered and helped in carrying a load, the weight of which never rested upon the shoulders of any other man, living or dead, in all history. He knows as all of us are beginning now to see, what is the drift among certain leading Republican politicians, who are now, and have been for sometime, obstructionists in Washington. It will give heart to our time, obstructionists in Washington to justify and to restrict the pendicular of the country, and in other parts of the country. Arr. Wilson's appeal for Democratic knowledge of opposing forces inside and outside of Congress, which opposition he fears will frustrate plans well laid for a successful closing of men who have almost succeeded in "living down" the reputations they then established. Mr. Roosevelt cannot understand. He is not built that way. The new federation of nations must not be cannot be founded upon hate. No peace attained through a spirit of hate, could stand. Mr. Roosevelt is "a bully." (He is proverbially fond of the use of the word.) He believes in fighting for its own sake. He is never happier than when in the ring. Like Don Quixot e, he fights not infrequently wind mills and imaginary foes, and like the celebrated Don, makes an ass of himself and a laugh, of whom he is insanely jealous, and of whom he is insanely jealous, and of commendation, is a statesman—a world-wide leader of a world-wide leader of conquest, but of peace. # YEARS OF DISCRETION.

When a man has reached the age of sixty years he has been dull student if he has not learned discretion. Most men learn it ear-lier. Up about Oyster Bay lives a man who has passed the 60-year mile post but has learned nothing along this important line. Rather, as th years have come and gone, and piled upon him honors, sorrows and responsibilities, which should have tempered the wildest and softened the most obdurate, he has become more reckless and less temperate in speech and feeling and inward venom. The poison of the asp distills from his lips and the braying of an ass proceeds still out of his mouth. The Etheopian cannot change his skin nor the Leopard his spots," says the Good Book.

Sixty years is not the "age of discretion" up around Oyster Bay,

"POLITICS ADJOURNED."

When the President said that poli tics should be adjourned until after the war, he had about concluded a bitter contest for the passage of a President Wilson's appeal to the Republicans and a prominent Demo port was "a bomb in the camp" of crybody except the Republican poli-Republicans and Democrats alike, in ticians referred to endorsed and apthis section. Again, it might be revealed how seeptical of human nature was a certain prominent farmer (now a staid grand-father), when, while on his first "deer stand," he refused the kindly advice of a well-meaning old hunter in those woods who happended to pass by, that he was not at just the right place, that the "stand" was a little further on. The deer had been "started," the back was in full cry, sweeping along the "bend of Clinch," and the potential grand-father, thinking the stranger was trying to "fool him off the stand," rather curtly said: "If you think that is the stand, you go to it." This the old hunter did—and killed the deer.

Then it would "come out" that there was once a conspiracy against the "deer killer," the one man who was always in the right place to get a shot, whereby he was sent far down the valley (for a Committee always assigned the stands), far away from any probable course of the expected buck; and it would further appear that the aforesaid "deer killer," got sore, disgruntled and rebellious, but rode on to the appointed place, and breaking all precedents, went to hunting squirels, in which petty past-time he was rudely interrupted by

Attorney General Gregory tells this

Attorney General Gregory tells this piquant story of a prominent financier and a well-known physician:

The money juggler called at the office of his family physician one morning and told him with much concern that his only son was suffering from diphtheria. The doctor was so licitous but assured the financiar that from diphtheria. The doctor was solicitous but assured the financiar that with the care given in the bospital to which the boy had been taken he would pull through nicely.
